DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 2/28/2005 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 11,12,15 and 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mascolo (US 3,857,192) in view of Perbet et al (US 4,915,231).

In regard to claim 11 and 15, Mascolo discloses the invention substantially as claimed including providing a backing member 14 upon which a product 46-48 is to be packaged, providing and applying adhering material 13 between the backing material and product, placing the product on the backing and partially encasing the product in transparent film 36 and 37 (see Figs. 1-3 and C2,L47 – C3,L30). What Mascolo does not disclose is the use of wrapping material to fully encase the product. However, Perbet teaches that it is old and well known in the art of packaging to provide a product 3, backing material 4, coated with synthetic material 6, which is encased by flexible plastic material 7 and 8 for the purpose of manufacturing a tamper resistant product (see Figs.1-3 and C4,L4-29). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have provided the invention of Mascolo with the wrapping means as taught by Perbet for the purpose of manufacturing a tamper resistant product.

In regard to claim 12, Mascolo discloses the invention substantially as claimed including a paperboard backing 10, which is capable of being recycled.

In regard to claims 18-20, the modified invention of Mascolo discloses the invention substantially as claimed including synthetic wrappers. However, the modified invention of Mascolo does not specifically disclose the specific transparency of the material. However, the examiner takes Official Notice that it is old and well known in the art of packaging to provide packaging material film with a transparent, opaque or a combination of both for the purpose of enhancing the look of the product package. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have provided the modified invention of Mascolo with packaging comprised of various levels of transparency for the purpose of enhancing the look of the product package.

4. Claims 13 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mascolo and Perbet as applied to claim 11 and in further view of Krampe et al (US 6,099,682)

The modified invention of Mascolo discloses the invention substantially as claimed as applied to claim 11 above including the use of a pressure sensitive adhesive. What the modified invention does not disclose is the use of a hot melt type of adhesive. However, Krampe teaches that it is old and well known in the art to provide an adhesive surface 16, with a hot melt adhesive for the purpose of creating a contact type adhesive (see Fig. 1,3 and C8,L40-49). Furthermore, the examiner takes Official Notice that it is old and well known in the art of packaging to provide an adhesive that can be a non permanent glue for the purpose of bonding a product and wrapper without causing damage to the product during removal. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have provided the modified invention of Mascolo with the hot melt adhesive means as taught by Krampe for the purpose of creating a contact type adhesive.

5. Claims 16 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mascolo and Perbet as applied to claim 11 and in further view of Saindon et al (US 5,518,559).

The modified invention of Mascolo discloses the invention substantially as claimed as applied to claim 11 above except for the use of registration marks and indicia on the package. However, Saindon teaches that it is old and well known in the art of packaging to provide a film 11 with registration marks 100 and marketing information indicia 101 for the purpose of correctly packaging and displaying an item (see Fig. 4). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have provided the modified invention of Mascolo with the registration marks and indicia as taught by Saindon for the purpose of correctly packaging and displaying an item.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 11-20 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
